Dear Members,

Welcome to the 3rd edition of the pointer magazine.

We are coming to the end of the fishing season 2015 – 2016 and what an actioned packed season it has been. Many of the contested fishing individual trophies and boat sections have gone down to the wire and most of the competitors have had to fish right to the end of June to win and or secure their sections. I don't think I have seen this happen in quite a few years. Good luck to all those dedicated anglers, male and female and boat captains.

We have the club's AGM coming up on Wednesday the 13th of July, so please make sure you put that date in your diaries and attend as there are some very important things to discuss regarding changes to our club constitution. Also on that night the existing committee will be standing down and a new committee will be elected. After the meeting there will be pizza and light refreshments.

The end of year presentation night is coming up on Saturday the 17th of September. The presentation night is to be held at the Grange Golf Club. What a great night it is going to be. Make sure you book a table as soon as possible so you don't miss out.

There was also another major tournament the Riviera Port Lincoln Tuna Classic which was held in early April and our club had eight boats entered in it. There were twenty boats entered all up. A couple of our club boats did very well in this tournament.

Congratulations to the "SPARTACUS" crew as they won champion boat for day two, champion boat runner up and Susan Czabayski was awarded champion angler overall and champion female angler. Also Gabriella Bianco part of the "MAJESSNIK" crew was awarded runner up female angler. Congratulations to those two teams.

The club is in good shape financially and has no debts apart from daily bills.

That's all from me and once again thanks to all our sponsors and advertisers in the pointer.

Tight Lines,

Ralph Czabayski

Wayne Greenshields
Club Weight Recorder
2014/15

Greetings All,

The 2015-16 season is now coming to an end.

Make sure to check out all of this seasons recordings listed in 'the Pointer'.

Remember too that recordings and totals scores are also updated online at the club's website, check the Current Fishing/ Results tab at the top of the home screen for more details.

The pointy end of the over 25ft category is very close, with 2 new faces jostling for top spot.

Good luck to Russell on MAJESSNIC and Ralph on SPARTACUS with less than a month remaining, these boats are engaged in an all-time, epic, cliff hanger with each recording I receive changing the current leader.

How cool is it when these recordings are often 10,000 point trips. Clearly these crews are here to compete! My back is sore just looking at the pile of tag cards. Great work guys and girls very impressive fishing.

Keeping all that in mind, 'Spartacus' still needs a shark to qualify as champion can this team do it?

The under 25ft Class this year still has been very slow compared to last year and is still anyone's to win. 'Justagirl' is topping the leader board (but still have not qualified as Champion boat). The 'Micks Winches' crew has come from nowhere and qualified as champion boat with current overall lady's champion Lee Van Soest catching all 4 qualifying criteria in just 2 trips fishing with Mick. Also making her the only lady angler to qualify so far this year as well.

Special Note to a couple stand out anglers with noteworthy performance's so far:

Shaun Ossitt

Once again with one of the best all round performances in all 3 sections Land based, Under25ft & Over 25ft with 10 species with 8 of these on 4KG line or under WELL DONE

Russell Bianco

A massive amount of recording with over 50,000 solo points and 140 recordings for over 2,000kg of fish keep it up Russell.

The club's yearly Recording have played out so far as follows

1014 total recordings for over 14,500 kg of fish.

672 Tag and release captures for over 8,800kg returned to be enjoyed by someone else in the future.

Well done tagging guys and girls, let's see if our club can win some GFAA Tagging trophies this year as well.

Local Captures of 17 Game Species

4 x Bronze Whaler Sharks, 1 x Brown Trout, 98 x European Carp, 7 x Eagle Rays, 5 x Gummy Sharks, 3 x Hammerhead Sharks, 39 x Yellowtail Kingfish, 9 x Mulloway 4 x Rainbow Trout 5 x Redfin perch, 44 x Australian Salmon 13 x Samson Fish 9 x School Sharks, 25 x Snapper 1 x Stripped Tuna 8 x Sliver Trevally, 717 x Southern Bluefin Tuna (4 of these fish where over 100KGs as well been a long time since our club has seen fish caught locally at this size Congratulations to Bruce, Steve, and Ralph with the only double figure captures being over 100kgs)

Other waters captures of 6 Game Species

1 x Atlantic Blue Marlin, 3 x Pacific Blue Marlin, 5 x Black Marlin, 9 x Stripped Marlin, 3 x Spearfish,

1 x Yellowfin Tuna from interstate waters

Good luck and tight lines

Club Membership Payments

By now you all would have received your membership renewals for the coming season 2016-17

It is really good to see that quite a few members have already paid for their memberships which is really great to see and really appreciated, you guys are on the ball this year, well done, any of you that have not yet paid it would really make our job on the committee run a lot smoother if you could see your way clear to making your payment as quick as you can

if you intend on EFT' ing your payments for renewal, which is fine to do so but please make sure you put your name in the payment "reference box" in your banking facility to identify the payment and who its from.

We have a lot of payments being made into our bank account that do not have any ID or reference to what it is for or who it is from ! As you can imagine this makes it very hard for us to track down that payee and what it is for

We left Lincoln at 6.00am heading for South Neptune Is. in pursuit of tuna and a shark. The weather wasn't looking that great but the score was close for the competition and we needed the points and a shark to qualify for champion boat. We Were fishing around the lumps all morning but tuna were very slow. On the radio there was talk about birds working at Ligeuania Is. As it was getting pretty rough we decided to take shelter for the day and try for Russell's shark. Apart from the excitement of seeing a few great whites we had no luck!

Next morning up early, we start the journey to Ligeuania Is. Soon as we arrive we sore the birds working. More birds than we have seen this year! We thought our luck had changed and we were going to be in for a big day. We put the lures out and instantly a double hook up. We landed two relatively small tuna but fishing on 4kg the points were still valuable. The next hour and half the tuna were biting well and we managed to land 26 fish. As soon as it hit lunchtime the fish had gone off! We trawled for hours without a hook up. We called it a day and headed to fisheries bay for the night.

Up early again we headed straight for the patch. Within half an hour of our drive we saw a whale ahead. It was breaching the water and jumping around, it was spectacular to watch. As we approach the patch Russell came down on the deck to throw the lures out. Just then I see a school of sharks feeding in a frenzy on tuna that where up on the surface, I scream at Russell to get the rods in but as he hit the boat into natural we had a triple hook up. he run down stairs and we land all the fish and he then frantically started getting the shark rods out and ready. It was too late - sharks were gone.

We then realise we are sitting on a huge school of tuna. We start to chum up and had them bubbling at the back of the boat. Pandemonium set in. Catching fish after fish only the two of us on board each having to land our own tuna and go again. It wasn't until we had run out of tags that we realised how many fish we had actually caught. It was 4pm and had not stopped all day. We were exhausted. We had tagged 107 tuna! But with the competition fierce we decided to keep fishing! We landed another 15 fish this time we recorded them as captures.

It was getting close to sunset and we still needed a shark so we anchor up on the patch and began berleying up. 30 minutes into it and we got our first hook up. After a 10 minute fight it had wrapped around the anchor chain and we lost had it. Over the next hour we lost another 2. Russell was exhausted. He was ready to give in but decided to have one more go. Within minutes, another hook up! The battle was on again, he wasn't going to lose this one. 45 mins later we finally had the shark at the back of the boat. It's was as exhausted as Russell. I grabbed the leader and held the weight as Russell threw the gaff- He missed. He tried again and with all the energy that he had left, I could only explain it as just the pure adrenaline kicking in, gaff was finally in and then we pulled the 80kg bronze whaler on board on pure adrenaline I'm sure it was like it was an 8kg tuna.

What a day. 122 tuna in all, 107 tagged, 15 tuna and one shark captured, as far as we knew that line made us, the first boat O25ft to qualify for champion boat this year! So it can be done and the fish are there to do it with you just have to be persistent at it and do it!

BROADBILL IS ON THE HUNT!

FOR THE ELUSIVE BROADBILL OFF PORT LINCOLN

I have planned a new trip to the Continental Shelf to try to find the elusive Broadbill; I have been out there 2 times before with my 35ft Bertram and John Nicholls on one of these trips with his Boat which at the time was called "Reel Action" a brand new 45ft Caribbean, but bad weather drove us back home after just one drift night's fishing over the shelf.

Had also tried a trip out off the shelf as recently as mid 2015 at the time that was in "Galaxy Star" a 50ft Bertram

I had over the prior years done various trips to the US. The first trip was to Ford Lauderdale, Miami where I chartered a Boat for two days, but no luck! Than I did another trip to place called, Islamorada in the state of Florida with a well known and experienced Broadbill exponent ,Captain Nick Stanczyk for 2 days and hooked up on the first day only to lose it right next to the Boat.

Day two I landed 3 Broadbills largest 173lb, but the important thing is I learned a few things about the techniques used so I could apply them back home in our waters.

Broad'y caught off Islamorada Florida

After studying the weather and speaking to a few local Fisherman, I decided to try the "Cape du Couedic" Canyon which is about 35 miles South from Kangaroo Island and 135miles from Poet Lincoln, the only thing I need 3 days if possible of good weather.

The time arrived as the outlook in regarding the weather outlook was at least looking good from Monday & Tuesday the 30th & 31st of May 2016, so I organized all of my crew for a departure on the Sunday.

The crew consisted of Skipper: Terry Aldenhoven, Deckhands: Steve Morris, Graham Bold and of course myself as the Angler. Steve arrived Friday afternoon so did Graham. My Boat "Broadbill" was all fuelled up and ready to go with 6000lt of Diesel.

On Saturday the 28th May, I went shopping for Food and general items, while the Boys prepared and stored all the weights and any other fishing equipment that may be needed .

Sunday the 29th of May, we departed Port Lincoln to get some Bait, we went near Williams Island and lucky we were able get all the Squid we would needed for Bait and even some to eat. We stayed that night at Williams and left about 5 am in the morning, as the wind subsided by then.

As skipper Terry got us on the way, steve and I prepared my 80lb & 50lb Chair Rods we had on board ready for Action. Graham had prepared a nice lunch which we had on the way, just before dark we arrived in the anchorage of Cape du Couedic, we anchored up in a little bay Terry called "Weirs Cove", were Steve put out a 6kg outfit not long after he had the first run, a Gummy Shark, not long after he had another one this time it was a school shark.

1gummy 2 school shark food for the table

I hooked up on one too and lost it next to the Boat, mean time Steve had another ! One on and was going around the boat but his was landed and that was that? we had had enough! It had been a long day, time for a drink!

While all this action was going on Graham had prepared a nice dinner which finished us all off, we all retired early as we were planning on leaving at about 5am in the morning after breakfast.

The Weather looked good this early morning not much wind but when we arrived at our location 3hr later we were right in the middle of a patch of weather not to windy but with a lot of rain, which seemed to followed us all day, it was weird!

Everywhere else around us for miles around was clear.

Rain just followed us all day !!

We surveyed the area in and around the Canyon's, looking for bait and or any structure on the bottom between 350-400meter, we found a little bit of bait and started to deploy our first weight of about 12lb with 100 feet of mono behind with our bait a nice Squid rigged by Steve .

After going forward for about 5 minutes we made a 180 degree turn and went back to the location were we lowered the weight and not long after the weight hit the Bottom , then it was up to me to wind about 30 meters up again to clear the weight from the Bottom and our drift began.

Steve and myself watched the rod tip for signs of a hit or something out of the ordinary to happen hoping that at any movement we would see action, after about 40 minutes we detected a slight downward movement more than it had been before on the tip of the Rod, we had a Bait, I picked up the chair rod which had the 130lb Penn International reel on, loaded with 65lb Braid and top shotted with 80lb monofilament line and made my way in to the Game chair, were I was buckled up to the seat harness and start winding, but there was no fight or run I knew it wasn't a Broadbill.

After I retrieved all the line from about 400 meter of depths we could see a colour, a fish we had caught a Blue-Eye Trevalla, we caught 2 more on the trip plus one small Hapuka.

Blue-eye trevalla

At least we had a fish we had never caught before. Steve and Terry reckoned these were excellent eating, so at least we had caught a feed!

On the last day we fished all that day and stayed on into the night before we departed for home we were interested in trying a few drifts with two Rods, with bait suspended at various depths.

Small Hapuka

Under a float system that was used in Miami' But no takers! Although we had all the Flood lights on, we thought we might have had attracted some sharks or squid but neither were seen, we gave up at around 1a.m. and started back on our long journey at 10 knots all the way to Port Lincoln , I know this trip was disappointing with no results, but I will try again next year maybe a bit earlier in year around the months of March, April and May maybe in a different location even. Thanks to my Crew for all your efforts.

Rods set as we are drifting under flood lights

No bill on this one!!

Note to Ronny Forster, I haven't given up , the bet is still on ,I have still 3 season up my sleeve before I cash in on the 100 to 1 bet with you.

Broadbill

There are as many ways to rig a marlin lure as there are lures themselves. I've seen rigs as simple as a Palomar knot to tie on the hook and an overhand knot to hold the head, and as complex as those using thimbles, wire, tubing and multiple hooks. There is no one correct method, and most will work just fine, provided they meet two simple requirements:

- The rigging must interfere with the action of the lure
 - The rigging must not fail in battle
- I personally would add one additional requirement, for reasons I'll cover later ...
- The rigging must be quick to re-rig

The method I use is based on one developed over 20 years ago for use on the original SoCal marlin lures. I like my method for several reasons. First, it provides both chafing protection and proper head-to-hook spacing, and does so in a reasonably elegant manner. You might not give a lot of thought to how your rigging looks, but when you're hosting the cocktail hour in the cockpit and all your lures are hanging in plain sight, you'll care. The second, and most important, reason is that it's quick to do. Time is critical when your hot lure needs to be retied - it can't catch fish when it's out of the water! Also, the quicker it is, the more likely I am to rerig as often as I should.

Time for the caveat. This is how I rig a trolling lure today - not yesterday, and probably not tomorrow. Like any good fisherman, I'm a continual student, and if I find a better way, you know I'll use it. Of course, that'll mean I'll have to change this chapter when I do ...

Getting Started

Before we talk about how, let's talk about what - the materials you'll need:

A lure (duh)

New or used, but must be in proper condition. Our example is a Big Reidee, beautifully crafted by Ron Akana.

Leader material

I've seen fluorocarbon used for lures, but I prefer standard mono. The fluorocarbon tends to be stiff and turns milky with use. Besides, I don't think the fish are that picky on lures, anyway. I use 150-lb test leader material, but have on occasion used 125 on smaller lures, or if I sense the fish are line shy (which is seldom). Any brand will do, but my current preference is Jinkai.

It seems limper than the rest, and is small enough to go easily through the crimps. You'll need a piece 16 to 17 feet in length.

Hook

My current preference is a Mustad 7732SS or 7691SS. I usually use a 9/0, although I like to adjust the hook size up or down based on the diameter of the lure head.

Tri-beads or just normal beads

There are many ways to get the proper spacing between the lure head and hook, but I prefer tri-beads because they provide great chafing protection when installed correctly, and add extra color and body to the lure. Some lures provide a package of beads, but I use them on all lures. They are available in several colors from your favorite tackle store, but I get my beads from a craft store, where the color selection is much greater. The actual colors you use are a matter of personal choice; I try to pick 1 or 2 colors that complement the skirts and add to the illusion.

Terminal Bead

This single bead rides just behind the lure head and protects it from the bead crimp. It's also a great way to add an identifier to your lure. I use a 10mm artificial pearl.

Crimps

Please hold the cards and letters about crimping versus swaging and the benefits (and flaws) of each. I freely acknowledge that the crimping method I use was designed for wire, and that swaging is probably a better method (and will likely be one of those better ways mentioned above). But in nearly 30 years of using this same basic method, I've never had a crimp fail. 'Nuff said. I use Sevenstrand A8 crimps for the ends of the leader and an A6 to hold the beads.

Crimping Pliers/Cutters

Nothing fancy here - they just need to work. For the cutters, I prefer nail clippers, because you get a cleaner cut.

Now that you have collected your materials and tools, it's time to go to work.

Examine the Lure

Before I rig the lure, I give it a quick once-over. On a new lure, I'm looking for workmanship errors - chips or other flaws in the head, loose or misaligned skirts, etc. If I'm rerigging a used lure, I add a check for battle damage. The most common damage is bill marks on the head and missing fingers on the skirts. No matter the flaw, take the time to repair it before you rig. If the flaw or damage is severe enough to compromise the performance of the lure, and cannot be repaired, replace the lure.

Start with the Hook

In rigging your hook, you need a method that will both withstand the pressure of the hooked fish and provide some measure of chafe protection. If you've ever felt the bill of a striped marlin you know it's just like a rasp, and can cause a lot of damage to the leader if not properly protected. Some folks use thimbles, springs or other devices to protect the hook loop, but the method I use provides security by running the leader through the hook twice. I've heard it referred to as an "offshore loop", but I can't say where that came from.

Start the rigging by sliding an A8 crimp sleeve (concave end first) onto the end of the leader. Next, slide on the hook and tie an overhand knot with the hook eye in the middle of the knot. Run the tag end back through the loop one more time and adjust the size of the loop to your liking. If you've tied it correctly, the leader will be running through the eye of the hook twice. Pass the tag end back through the sleeve, snug the sleeve up to the knot and crimp in place. Cut off the excess as close as possible to the sleeve with nail trimmers, being very careful to not nick the main line.

Pack 'Em On

Now comes the beads. begin sliding tri-beads onto the leader and down to the hook crimp. If you're using more than one colour, you can alternate them as you like to form a pattern. Once you have several inches of beads in place, begin comparing your leader to the lure. The goal is to have the point of the hook at the end of the skirt, so continue adding beads until you approach the right amount. When you think you're close, slide an A6 sleeve onto the leader followed by the terminal bead and the lure. Let the lure hang from your hand and look at where the hook is located relative to the end of the skirts. Add or subtract beads as necessary to get the point of the hook where you want it.

Once you have your beads in place, it's time to secure them with a crimp. This is an important step often overlooked on pre-rigged lures. The beads provide good protection for the lower leader, but without the upper sleeve, they can ride up the line during a fight, exposing it to bill damage. Worse, they can slide back down and hide the damage from view - until the line breaks and you wonder why.

There's another advantage to using the upper crimp above the beads. Should the leader break at the hook in a way that takes the lower crimp, the beads and lure will slide off and be lost. But if you've secured your beads with a upper crimp, that crimp will also prevent you from losing an expensive lure. It's bad enough to lose the fish, but worse to lose the weapon you used to hook it.

Finishing Touches

Next up is the terminal bead. Several years ago, when I started experimenting with different brands of marlin lures, I noticed a great variety in the design of the back of the lure head.

Some would have a small hole barely large enough for the leader to pass through, while others would have much larger holes to allow a plug or pin to be inserted. There was a wide variety of materials, as well. I found that the upper crimp would sometimes dig into the head material or become stuck in the exit hole, both of which I considered unacceptable.

By adding an extra bead between the upper crimp and the lure head, it served as a spacer between the two. It also serves as a way to identify my own lures, which is important when everyone on the boat is using the same lure brands!

After you add the terminal bead, slide on the lure and perform a quick inspection.

Verify that the lure hangs where you thought it would, and can rotate freely on the leader. If everything looks OK, you're ready to complete the leader.

IGFA rules allow a 30-ft leader, but I limit mine to 15-ft. You need the leader to be long enough to never allow the fish to touch the main line.

Make it too long, however, and the fish will remain too deep when the swivel hits the rod tip. I don't like to force the leader man to have to handline in the leader, so I want it short enough that when the angler has the swivel at the rod tip and steps back, the fish is near the surface. The height of your boat's gunwale will affect your leader length, so experiment to find the length right for you.

Measure off your desired leader length from the hook, adding 6 inches for the upper loop, and cut off the excess. Add an offshore loop (without the hook, of course!) to the remaining end of the leader,

Always Re-rig

I said at the outset that I like this method because it lets me re-rig in a hurry.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of re-rigging your lures whenever damage is detected. The small amount of time and effort you will pay is a pittance compared to losing a marlin due to short-sightedness.

All marlin lure leaders show wear over time, even if they have seen no action. Check your lures periodically for wear, and re-rig if damage is found. This is doubly important after a strike - it's nearly impossible for a marlin to hit a lure without doing damage.

Start your evaluation at the hook end, since this is where most damage occurs. Look at the loop holding the hook for cuts or abrasions from the marlin bill or for thinning of the line due to the hook itself. Run your fingers along the leader, feeling for those nicks you eyes might never see.

Any lure that gets bit is a lure that I want in the water - but not if the leader is potentially damaged. As a result, I re-rig any lure that catches (or loses) a fish. Here's how to get it back in the water in a hurry ...

In my tackle kit, I carry several partially completed lure leaders with the hook crimped onto 16 feet of mono. This give me a head start on the new leader. Cut the old leader just above the lure and slide it off. Grasp the beads tightly in your non-cutting hand in the first fold of your fingers (for you golfers, it's the same place the handle of a club resides) and cut the leader again between the beads and the hook crimp. Slide the tag end of the new leader into the hole in the tightly-held bead stack, pushing out the old leader as you go (if you have maintained the alignment of the bead stack, this should go smoothly). Add a sleeve and crimp the beads in place, followed by the lure. Complete the loop at the end of the leader and you're ready to go! With a little practice, the total time is only about a minute.

Finally, check the attachment loop for damage. If you find any damage at all, re-rig the lure - it's just not worth the risk.

I have had a few boats in the past but haven't got a boat at the moment.

I like all types of fishing - boat and land based - especially the West Coast beaches, e.g. Yalata and Fowlers Bay.

I also like chasing the large game fish like Tuna, Kingfish and more recently Billfish in W.A.

I have fished all my life but have got to know what fishing is all about over the last 10 years with the boys from work.

My other interests are 4 wheel driving, hunting and getting away.

Many thanks
Jeremy Foreman

Here is a shot of me on Spartacus with some of catch from the last trip with Ralph.

Currently we have a ski boat but this is for sale with the view to buying a fishing boat in the coming months.

I have fished ever since I can remember. We had a beach shack at Aldinga when we were growing up and I haven't stopped since.

I have a group of close mates and we head across to Yorkes every 6 months for a 4 day fishing getaway. (next one in October)

We tend to target Snapper and Whiting on these trips and it was great to get the opportunity to land some nice Tuna with Ralph on Spartacus over the Anzac long weekend.

Cheers Chris

I have a Boston Whaler Conquest 255 and its name is 'GIZMO 2'

I have been fishing since the age of 4 (1982) catching my first tommies from the Port Lincoln Wharf

Enjoy fishing around the York Peninsula chasing whiting, snapper, squid. However the new craze is Tuna. I was introduced to tuna fishing with a 1 week trip in March 2010 where Brian Stokes was kind enough to take me along, and since then I can't get enough. So a very big thank you goes out Brian, fantastic bloke.

Fishing might be put on hold as we are expected our first little baby this October.

Chasing the Sails

Hi All,

I recently came back from a fishing trip in Broome. I chartered Makaira Game Fishing Charters which is owned and operated by Jeda Ellens.

My trip started off by leaving Adelaide at 11Am, flying to Perth and then connecting to a second flight to Broome, which I arrived in Broome at 6pm.

I was picked up by the Cable Beach Lodge courtesy bus and taken to my hotel. I checked in and went to my room and then headed down to the sunset bar and grill where I had a few Coronas and a meal. For those who are thinking of going to Broome I recommend staying at the Cable Beach Lodge.

Day one, the next morning, I was up bright an early and made my way down to Cable Beach for 7am where Jeda from Makaira Charters was there to pick me up and take me out to the boat.

Capt. Jeda

We were quite lucky as the sailfish which we were hunting were only 10 to 15km away.

We got to the spot which didn't take long as we were cruising at 33 knots. Jeda put out two teasers to attract the Sailfish up and we started trolling. We also caught some live bait and put them in the live bait tanks.

We then rigged up two live pitch baits ready for when a Sailfish came up on the teasers. So when you start trolling you have your two teasers out approximately twenty to thirty meters from the boat.

Then you start working the spot and when a sailfish comes up and many times there are at least two or more Sailfish that come up, you then pitch a live bait back to where the Sailfish are, then Jeda pulls in the teasers and hopefully the Sailfish switch to the live bait.

When the live bait is taken you let the Sailfish run for about 10 seconds and then put the drag up on the reel and the fight begins.

Anyway day one started a little slow but it soon heated up with us tagging and releasing 5 Sailfish for the day. The Sailfish ranged from 10Kg to about 23Kg.

Tagged

Every time we pitched a bait back the Sailfish went straight to the bait and I hooked up.

Five strikes and luckily five hook ups and five successful tag shots by captain Jeda.

What a great day, hot weather, calm seas and five tagged Sailfish.

We headed back to Cable Beach.

I went back to the hotel and yes, I headed down to the Sunset Bar for a few Coronas, then had a meal, went to bed early to get rested for the next day's fishing.

Hook Ups !! Starting to happen

Day two, started off well with two tagged sailfish early in the morning.

A third one came a long around 11am and then we had two more Sailfish come up but we couldn't get them to hook up.

It was like they weren't really hungry. Oh well three tagged Sailfish for the day. Fishing was getting slow so for day three we thought we would go wide approximately forty miles and chase some black marlin.

Anyway that night as it was a full moon Broome was alive as that night was the start of the "Stairway to the moon" which usually lasts for three nights. This only happens about six times a year.

I went back to my room and had a shower and then caught a cab to the Mangrove Resort.

Hooked Up !! Non Again

This is one of the best spots to view the stairway to the moon. Obviously we had a couple of beers waiting for the moon to come up and as it goes up it throws down a reflection on the water and beach that looks like a stairway to the moon. It was pretty good to see.

Day three, off we went to chase Black Marlin. It took us approximately an hour and a half to get out to the spot.

There was bait everywhere and lots of birds diving. It looked very fishy and I thought we could be in for a busy day catching Marlin. But unfortunately we did not see any Marlin. Not a cracker.

The Marlin chasing was a bit disappointing but that's fishing. What a great trip I tagged and released 8 Sailfish in three days fishing. If anyone wants to go fishing in Broome Makaira Charters is the way to go. Jeda runs a great operation, check your pointer magazine for his contact details. I would recommend Makaira Charters to our club members. Time to go home and brave the cold weather and catch up with the family. ——— Tight lines, Ralph Czabayski

Steve Morris GFCSA
Tournament Director

Hi All I am always asked how to maintain fish gear as I do not really have the time to go into writing out long explanations myself here is an article done by another well known advocate of the sport fishing world Peter Pakula with some tips and thoughts of his that I though might help you with how to maintain your gear and put you on the right track

Steve Morris Tournament Director GFCSA

Gear and Lure Maintenance

by Peter Pakula

Prevention

You can prolong the life of your fishing tackle by putting protective oils on your gear before you use it.

If your tackle is used before you protect it then handling corrosion and salt penetration becomes more of an issue.

For rods and reels a coating of silicone on rods will protect blanks, binding finishes.

Reels should be dismantled, checking for any areas that haven't got a grease or oil coating and if necessary applying coatings to exposed areas.

Exposed metal areas that aren't moving parts such as side plates can be coated in corrosion blockers or silicone. Moving parts should be coated in the oil and grease recommended by the manufacturer.

Trolling skirts are made from various types of plastics, mainly PVC, which are by nature hard and brittle. They are made soft by the addition of oils. These oils do not bond with the skirt materials and will continue to leach and migrate to the surface of the skirts, which has the effect of either making them feel sticky or stiff and sometimes brittle.

If the skirts are sticky, stiff or brittle then the oil content of the skirts has been diminished and salt and other chemicals in both salt and fresh water will replace the oils in the skirts.

To Rejuvenate Skirts the Process is

- Put the skirted lures in just boiled water, agitate them for around a minute which removes any sticky surface oil, and dissolves salt, ie cleans out the skirts.
- Dry the skirts laid neatly and flat on a towel in the shade.
- Spray with Silicone Oil and rub the silicone into the skirt. Use a high grade pure silicone such as CRC 808. Don't use cheap multipurpose or food grade silicone's. Many furniture polishes such as Pledge or Mr Sheen are high grade silicone's, but don't use scented ones.
- Allow an hour or two for the silicone to soak into the skirts and if necessary reapply another coat.

Long Term Storage of Skirted Lures

- For long term storage the best is spaying the lures and rigs with silicone and wrapping individual lures in grease proof paper and storing away from light sources.
- If you store lures in plastic of any sort the lubricants in the skirts will migrate to any plastic or other lures the skirts are in contact with. Spraying any plastic containers or lure bags with silicone will cut the migration down significantly.

Storage and Maintenance of Rigs

All hooks have a steel and carbon content that will corrode in salt water over time. Spaying rigs with silicone or other greases will keep rigs in top condition for many years.

There is a significant point about coating hooks with non-conductive coatings which can significantly increase your hook up rate. Basic physics is that when a ferrous object i.e. rig with carbon and steel, pass through the earths magnetic field the object will put out an electrical field which can confuse a fish attacking a trolled lure. Putting a a non conductive coating such as silicone, non conductive grease, Teflon, powder coating etc will prevent any electrical fields, prolong the life of your rig and increase your success rate.

Fish For Life, will cross 3 Oceans, 4 Seas, 9 Gulf, 1 Bite and 7 Straits.

Including some of the most treacherous waters in Australia where hundreds of seafaring folks have lost their lives to Mother Nature's fury over the years.

We are navigating the seas over around Australia, a 4 month journey to get our nation digging deep and celebrating life and to hopefully raise much needed funds for Cancer Council Australia while visiting every port of Australia.

Fish for Life founder Mark Ratchford may endure anything up to 17 metre waves that are frequent when navigating in the southern ocean, to waters that are extremely difficult to navigate big tides across the top of Australia.

In the mix, other dangers may include Poisonous Snakes, Sharks, Crocodiles and the dreaded Sand Flies just to name a few. It is going to be one hell of a ride!

A passionate sea bound man with a dedicated ground crew will travel 1,507 Kilometres across the Great Australian bite, between Esperance and Ceduna, this challenge may take up to 50hrs straight only stopping to meet the tender vessel for re-fuelling.

Our Skipper Mark will cross the leg is to Tassie through the notorious Bass Strait in the middle of winter enduring freezing and rough conditions, navigating through the hole in the wall at Guluwuru Island Northern Territory, and not to forget the risk involved in getting through the Horizontal Falls.

Its not all risk and danger for the guys, they will experience our nations wonders visiting some of the most picturesque locations on earth right here in Australia. They will enjoy the opportunity to explore. Deserted Islands, The Great Barrier Reef, The Kimberley's and the breathtaking cliffs of the Great Australian Bite. Mark will also have the opportunity to fish areas that are not visited often by man. The variety of fish species caught along the way will vary from Marlin and Tuna to Bream and Mullet, Fish For Life practices responsible release of fish and only keep fish to feed the crew whilst travelling. With the help of the fishing fraternity Fish For Life will hopefully be able to raise the much needed funds to help cancer patients in every state of Australia.

Get Onboard..People need us and we need you to get on board and join us in this epic journey so together we can help as many people and their families as possible.

The departure launch was held at the Melbourne boat show on June 20th the anticipation from the team is contagious , Fish for Life (FFL) has now been in the planning stage for nearly 2 years. With major national sponsors: Evolution Boats, mercury, monster fish, Sav winch, Simrad, Platinum Event Agency and Team justagirl, the venture is ready to take on cancer across the nation. A fishing trip of some 5 months made up of 90 legs, some of these are available to the public.

Thanks to all of the helpers on the day wishing us luck

Finally heading off on the first leg.

This event is the first Cancer Council National mutli State event ever and a pilot for the Cancer Council. This means that funds raised in each state stay in each state. The S.A. team are looking for as many volunteers as possible to help with this part of the event, if you can help in anyway! Please put your hand up.

The FFL crew will arrive in Adelaide on the 6th November there will be a Family fun day held in Port Adelaide. The FFL boat will be escorted down the Port river by approx 100 S.A. trailer boats supporters, be apart of the history and register your boat for this event via Tracey Tito at "teamjustagirl.com.au".

The fun day will be held on the docks at Harts Mill with something for everyone. More details to come. We are also looking for volunteers and fuel donations for the state of S.A. stops during FFL leg of the journey around Australia. There are also a few S.A. legs up for donation and as a part of the donation you get go on that leg : Ceduna to Port Lincoln, Port Lincoln to Adelaide with a stop at K.I., Adelaide to Victor harbour and Victor harbour to Portland. full details at www.fishforlife.org.au or Follow the journey in real time on :

Diving / hard body lures often take a beating through catching fish, casting and general abuse, so it is not unusual for your favourite baits to become out of tune.

This can lead to performance problems in the way a lure runs in the water.

If a lure is not running the way it should in the water, it could result in fish ignoring your bait. This is why it is important to regularly check your baits and give them a quick tune up to make sure they are running correctly.

Tuning your lures is a simple process, but it is one of those details that some anglers do not pay attention to. Here is how you can get your lures in tune with a few simple steps.

The most common sign that your lure is out of tune is that it will be pulling to the left or right. This indicates that the loop that you connect your line to is bent to one side or the other.

You want your lure to run straight, so you will need to take a pliers and carefully bend the loop to tune it. If your lure is pulling to the right, you will want to bend the loop to the left. If it is pulling to the left, bend it towards the right.

This process can take some trial and error, but after a few tries, your lure should be running straight.

DIVING

Crankbaits can be out of tune if they are not diving straight down. In some cases, even brand new crankbaits will be out of tune.

Test your crankbaits to make sure they are diving straight down. The best way to test them is by using a fast retrieve. This is most likely to reveal any problems in the lure's movement. If a lure is listing to either side then it needs to be tuned with the same technique used above.

HOOK HANGERS

Especially when fighting larger fish, it is not uncommon for hook hangers to become bent. This can alter the way your lure runs in the water and needs to be adjusted/straightened. Make sure your hooks are hanging straight and that the hangers are not bent anymore. If they or the hooks are bent, use a pliers to bend them back into their proper shape or position.

CUSTOM TUNING

In some cases, you may want to change the movement of your lure to get it to run differently in the water. In these situations you can use some custom tuning techniques that could result in more fish in the boat.

If you have a crankbait with a metal bib, you can bend the bib up or down to change the diving depth or the wobble of the bait. On crankbaits with plastic bibs, you can bend the tie-on loop forward or backward to achieve similar results. If the line-tie is the screw-in type, you can try removing it and screwing it in either closer or further away position from the body to alter the lure's movement in the water.

HARPUKA*

Scientific name Polyprion oxygeneios.

Range Lancelin in Western Australia and southern waters to around Port Macquarie in NSW.

Description A very large species reaching 1.8 m and 70 kilograms. It can be found occasionally in waters as shallow as 15 metres, and from 50 to 400 metres but is most common in 150 - 350 metre depths. This attractive fish is frequently slate grey to blue-grey and may tend towards dusky grey. The head and mouth is large and can take very big baits. The lower jaw is undershot which is diagnostic. The gill cover has a horizontal ridge which ends in a modest spine.

Fishing It is only in the last decade or so that anglers have been willing to chase hapuku in private boats as the depths they are found in involves considerable travel, favourable weather and specialised deep water gear. The use of braid line has made the task of getting a kilogram or more of weight and large hapuku back to the surface more realistic. Due to the extreme depths, most fish show considerable signs of barotrauma including popped eyes and protruding stomachs. Some charter boats are now targeting this species with some concern that they are vulnerable to over-exploitation at even modest fishing levels. Hapuku are frequently caught with other large species such as the bar cod and bass groper. Caught in shallow water, the hapuku puts up a strong fight. The fight in deeper water is sandbagged by the huge weights and heavy gear often used. The hapuku is caught by many commercial fishers and is considered to be one of the best cooler water fish to eat.
